About the Author Montague Brown (Ph.D., Boston College) is Richard L. Bready Professor of Ethics, Economics, and the Common Good and chair of the philosophy department at St. Anselm College in Manchester, New Hampshire. Among his numerous publications is The Quest for Moral Foundations: An Introduction to Ethics. Patricia began quilting in 1978, very reluctantly! A friend kept after her to go with her to quilting lessons and Patricia finally gave in. From the first lesson, she found she couldn't get enough! Patricia made samplers, Amish-style quilts, and traditional quilts. When her last son left home, Patricia found herself in a quilt shop surrounded by batik fabric and fell in love with quilting all over again. Batiks opened up a new world to Patricia. A. H. Halsey is Emeritus Fellow of Nuffield College, Oxford, and a Fellow of the British Academy. His books include Change in British Society (now in its fourth edition) and Decline of Donnish Dominion, both published by OUP. Hugh Lauder is Professor of Education at the School of Education, University of Bath. Phillip Brown is at the University of Kent at Canterbury. Professor Amy Stuart Wells is at the University of California.
