praised The Challenge of Regulating Managed Care (The University of Michigan Forum on Health Policy):

Representatives of industry, government, caregivers, and consumers join scholars and policy analysts in comparing market forces to regulation as potential means for righting what is wrong with managed care. The contributors that John E. Billi and Gail B. Agrawal have gathered here quickly move the healthcare debate beyond the classroom, think tank, and statehouse to the boardroom and examining room.

"The book highlights efforts to counterbalance the dominance of huge, national managed care organizations in the aftermath of managed care's successful quasi-revolution... It does not engage in 'managed care bashing' based on a 'battle of anecdotes.' It presents balanced perspectives from practicing physicians to the primary trade association for the industry. Between those poles are the reasoned voices of consumers, purchasers, accreditors, regulators, and litigators."
