The Einstein of the earBy 12 sunyataTomatis' work has influenced countless physicians, psychologists, and other healthcare providers into the 21st century. His work laid the foundation for treating myriad mental/learning disorders with non-pharmaceutical therapy, primarily sound.

Dr. Alfred Tomatis (1920-2001), was a world-renowned Ear Nose and Throat specialist working in the field of auditory phonetics. Through his research into the function of the ear in language learning, he found that the relationship between hearing and reproducing sounds can be used to facilitate the comprehension, expression and assimilation of a language.
